how we LOVE

CREATE A DEEPER, RICHER, RELATIONSHIP!

- Is your relationship good but not great?
- Do you desire a relationship where you can be authentic and accepted?
- Are differences creating conflict rather than promoting intimacy?
- Do you resort to control, ambivalence, avoidance, or pleasing to engage your partner?

Come to “How We Love” and learn to vitalize your relationship and connect to your partner in a new and life-giving way!

Not just for couples... If you are single or widowed, divorced or dating, young or old, this conference will help you understand how where you’ve come from affects how you experience relationships and will give you tools to grow in your capacity for intimate connection.

OUR PRESENTERS: MILAN & KAY YERKOVICH

The Yerkovich’s have been married thirty-four years, and are the parents of four adult children. They experienced an awakening to deeper intimacy and emotional connection fifteen years into their marriage when they discovered the powerful connection between the past and its influence on the present through the principles of attachment theory.

Kay Yerkovich is a licensed marriage and family therapist with a master’s degree in counseling. She has been using attachment theory in her professional counseling of couples and families for more than thirteen years.

Milan Yerkovich is a weekly co-host on the nationally-syndicated New Life Live! radio program. An ordained pastoral counselor with a Master’s Degree in Biblical Studies, he has been helping couples and families build healthier relationships for more than twenty-five years. Milan counsels, trains, consults, and speaks on relationships and intimacy.
